LEADERSHIP REPORT

On behalf of the hundreds-of-thousands of Nebraska children, veterans, young professionals, seniors, cultural professionals, and residents who have benefitted from the programs and grants of Nebraska Arts Council and Humanities Nebraska in 2017, we would like to thank our donor investors and stakeholders for their transformational support of the Nebraska Cultural Endowment. Thanks to the vision of our state legislature and many passionate Nebraskans, this nationally unique asset cultivates a legacy of stability for the treasured cultural resources and community identities of Nebraska.

The Nebraska Cultural Endowment has reached a collective $20M thanks to this visionary public-private partnership, which began in 1998. As a result, over $11M has been granted across Nebraska over the 20-year history of the NCE, with over $1.1M of that granted in 2017 alone.

With this perpetual support, organizations and programs like the Joslyn Art Museum, Lied Center for Performing Arts, Prime Time Family Reading Time, the Willa Cather Foundation and the Midwest Theater can rely on stable and significant funding, creating access to high-quality cultural experiences for hundreds-of-thousands of Nebraska families across the state each year.

Most excitingly, the momentum doesn't stop here! We now have the opportunity to grow both the privately and publicly held endowments to a combined $30M. Thanks to recent legislation, The State of Nebraska has extended NCE's one-to-one match by an additional $5M, to be leveraged by an equal investment of private donations.

To reach this goal, it will take a community of support to ensure the future of Nebraska's strong cultural fabric.

Shared Celebrations

- Together, the Nebraska Arts Council and Humanities Nebraska serve all 93 counties of Nebraska.
- The programs and grants of NAC and HN have helped to create 3,262,448 cultural experiences, engaging and transforming the lives of hundreds-of-thousands of Nebraskans.
- Both NAC and HN exercise leadership in a national context. Suzanne Wise and Chris Sommerich serve on the boards of their respective service organizations, the National Assembly of State Arts Agencies and the Federation of State Humanities Councils. Suzanne was recently elected as First Vice Chair of NASAA.

Nebraska Arts Council

- Without NCE funding, NAC ranks 23rd in state arts spending per capita. With NCE, they rank 16th.
- There is consistent growth of grantees budgets and programs thanks to NAC and NCE funding – from 2013 to 2017, arts organizations that receive annual operating support experienced an average budget growth of 21%.

Humanities Nebraska

- Prime Time Family Reading Time had a record 35 programs in 20 locations across Nebraska.
- There was a 40% increase in Speakers Bureau programs with 651 total, 186 more than in 2016.
- Humanities Nebraska served 188 unique Nebraska communities in 2017

THE ARTS AND HUMANITIES MEAN BUSINESS

The Nebraska Cultural Endowment firmly believes that a strong cultural sector is good for business, especially in smaller communities throughout Greater Nebraska. A great example of this synergy between the arts and humanities and business and commerce is the Buffalo Commons Storytelling and Music Festival in McCook, Nebraska.

The two-day festival generates an estimated $69,791 in spending on things like accommodations, retail sales, food service and transportation. $45,416 of that originates from outside the county, creating a significant influx of commerce into the McCook community in just 48 hours. This economic boost is expected to grow by 20% in 2018.

It is a unique way to bring our history and our future together. It's a great economic boost for the weekend, allowing our great community to prosper.

— Jamie Mockry, McCook Area Chamber of Commerce

Thanks to this cultural resource, which is supported by both the Nebraska Arts Council and Humanities Nebraska, it is estimated that $5,251 was generated in tax receipts for state and local governments in 2017. The budget and audience has steadily increased over the last three years, thanks to investment by NAC, HN and other sources.

By creating events for people to attend, we are creating a reason for visitors to come to McCook and to spend money. It is vitally important that we have 'new' money come in and not just circulate the dollars that originate in the community.

— Carol Schlegel, McCook Visitors Bureau

Not only do programs like this boost local economies and generate tax revenue, they also enrich the lives of the children, seniors and families who attend through creative activities and engagement in their Nebraska heritage and community identity. One of the most important investments we can make is in the future generations of Nebraska.

Future leaders learn about the history of our community, of those who have blazed a path and laid the foundation.

— Mary Dueland, Festival Director

CULTURE AS AN ECONOMIC DRIVER

The Nebraska Cultural Endowment is a proud partner of Omaha Performing Arts. OPA is leading the way as Nebraska's largest performing arts organization and their programs have a significant impact on state and local revenues, patronage of nearby shops and restaurants and overall quality of life for residents of Omaha and the surrounding region. When a community is made more creative and interesting by cultural resources, people decide to live and work there, developing and retaining the workforce for other commerce to take place.

By presenting world-renowned artists, touring Broadway productions, dance, jazz, popular music, speakers, comedians and more, Omaha Performing Arts attracted over 3.7 million people in its first 12 years, with 40% of its audience coming from outside Douglas County and 18% outside of Nebraska.

"The global reputation of the artists OPA presents helps to attract people from a wide region to Omaha, and these performances contribute to the overall quality of life in our community"

— Joan Squires, President of Omaha Performing Arts.

As a result, Omaha Performing Arts is responsible for an annual economic impact of over $40 million and also generates millions of dollars for state and local government from tax revenues.

"Omaha's vibrant arts community is a thriving, cultural gem, where artists excel and the region celebrates our many award-winning performances, shows and experiences - performances that fuel our economy and set the Metro apart as one of the top creative hubs in the nation. No surprise: we're bullish on the arts, and are stronger for the vital energy, ambition and commerce powered by our important cultural partners."

— David G. Brown, President and CEO of Greater Omaha Chamber
