COMMUNICATION(S)

January 6, 2017

Senator Dan Watermeier, Chair
Legislative Executive Board
State Capitol, Room 2108
Lincoln, NE 68509

Dear Senator Watermeier:

The purpose of this letter is to provide clarity regarding the issuance of Attorney General Opinions to members of the Nebraska Legislature. Members of the Legislature are entitled to receive opinions from the office of Attorney General upon questions of law which arise "in the discharge of their duties."¹ The issuance of Attorney General Opinions to members of the Legislature is limited to valid legislative purposes.² Thus it is the continued policy of the Office of the Attorney General to issue opinions to senators only on matters concerning proposed or pending legislation and not for the personal benefit of a state senator or any private individual or entity on a senator's behalf.

As matters concerning proposed or pending legislation are implicitly matters of public concern, it is the policy of this office that all Attorney General Opinions issued in response to a request from a member of the Legislature will be formal opinions and that requests for informal opinions will not be granted to members of the Legislature. Formal opinions are published and are a matter of public record. Please review the enclosed document for further suggestions on ensuring that such requests are properly stated.

Thank you for your service to the people of Nebraska.

Sincerely,
(Signed) Douglas J. Peterson
Attorney General

² See Nebraska Public Power District v. City of York, 212 Neb. 747, 326 N.W.2d 22 (1982).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

All state officers, including members of the Nebraska Legislature, are entitled to receive opinions of the Attorney General upon questions of law which arise "in the discharge of their duties." Follmer v. State, 94 Neb. 217, 142 N.W. 908 (1913); Neb. Rev. Stat. § 84-205(4) (2014).

The Opinion Process

- The process is initiated by presenting the Attorney General with a written request for an opinion which states the precise legal question which the state officer would like to have answered.
- When an opinion request is received, it is entered into a tracking system within the Department of Justice and assigned to a particular assistant attorney general for preparation of an opinion. In most cases, opinions are prepared by assistant attorneys general in the Legal Services Bureau of the Department of Justice. The attorney assigned to the opinion proceeds to research the legal issue(s) and write the opinion.
- After an opinion is completed, it is reviewed by the appropriate Bureau Chief, the Deputy Attorney General and the Attorney General.
- After approval by all parties, the opinion is assigned a number, issued and delivered to the officer who requested it.

Opinion requests, particularly those for formal opinions, are generally considered a matter of public record, and may be released to third parties in response to an appropriate inquiry.

- Time frames. It is more important to arrive at the correct legal answer in response to an opinion request than it is to provide a quick answer. Accordingly, preparation of Attorney General opinions generally takes anywhere from thirty to ninety days, depending on the nature of the question(s) presented and the nature of the opinion (formal or informal). The Attorney General understands that those time frames are consistent with or shorter than the time frames for opinions used by the attorneys general of other states. However, the Attorney General also understands the time constraints placed upon the legislative session. As a result, the Attorney General tries to give opinion requests from senators received during the legislative session additional priority and some measure of expedited treatment consistent with the availability of resources within the Department of Justice.

Formal And Informal Opinions Of The Attorney General

- Formal Opinions. Formal opinions have a specific number and date and are a matter of public record. They are published on the Attorney General's website and on legal research services such as Westlaw. Those internet sources contain opinions from approximately 1978 through the present. In addition, bound volumes of Attorney General opinions are available in the State Library. Those materials date from the late 1800s through the present.
- Informal Opinions. Informal opinions are also assigned a specific number. However, they are issued only to the requestor and are not generally provided to the public or made a matter of public record. The Department of Justice has tracked informal opinions since 1991.
- Informal opinions generally relate to issues which are limited to a specific official or agency and which do not involve matters of statewide concern. Informal opinions are also often issued when there is a need to assert the attorney/client privilege.
- The final decision as to the nature of an opinion, formal or informal, and as to its release to the public or to other parties, is made by the Attorney General.

Opinions To State Senators

- Opinions are issued to state senators for "valid legislative purposes" pertaining to pending or proposed legislation.
- The Attorney General will generally decline to issue opinions to legislators regarding the constitutionality of existing statutes, since it is the Attorney General's duty to defend those statutes in court if they are challenged.
- The Attorney General will also generally decline to issue opinions to legislators seeking interpretations of existing statutes, unless the interpretation is directly related to proposed or pending legislation, or unless the interpretation pertains directly to the performance of some function or duty of the Legislature itself.
- Attorneys with the Department of Justice are attorneys for the State of Nebraska and, as a result, may not issue private legal opinions or represent private parties. Therefore, state senators may not obtain legal opinions for their personal use or benefit, nor may they obtain opinions for the personal use or benefit of constituents, private individuals, or private entities.
- Since attorneys with the Department of Justice are attorneys for the State of Nebraska, and since governmental subdivisions in Nebraska (cities, counties, school districts, power districts, etc.) are separately represented by their own lawyers, state senators may not obtain legal opinions for governmental subdivisions.
- Opinions to state senators are always issued as formal opinions because legal questions pertaining to proposed legislation obviously involve matters of statewide interest and matters of interest to the entire legislative body.

- Op. Att'y Gen. No. 157 (December 20, 1985), which is attached, offers a more detailed discussion of the policies of the Attorney General with respect to the issuance of opinions to members of the Legislature.

Suggestions For Making Opinion Requests

- Opinion requests should always set out the specific legal concern or the specific legal question at issue with as much detail as possible. Questions such as, "Is this bill constitutional or legal?" may necessarily result in a general response from the Attorney General which may or may not be helpful.
- To expedite the opinion process, opinion requests should be accompanied by the relevant proposed or pending legislation and any pertinent amendments to that legislation. In addition, copies of any other documentary materials necessary to answer the questions presented should also be included with the request.
- The Attorney General understands that legislative staff and other individuals such as lobbyists often provide members of the Legislature with legal memoranda, legal research, or other materials regarding particular opinion requests or particular legislative issues. Providing those materials to us with the request as pertinent will also help us to expedite preparation of the opinion.
- As noted above, the Attorney General tries to give priority to opinion requests from senators during the legislative session. The Attorney General also tries to give priority to opinion requests when the circumstances surrounding that request warrant an expedited response. Accordingly, if a particular opinion request does require expedited treatment for some reason, so stating in the opinion request will help make us aware of the need for a quicker response.
