The provisions of LB 384 make the following changes:

- Provide an avenue for those individuals who have not served as a licensed salesperson or broker for two (2) years where they are able to request a hearing before the Real Estate Commission where prior work history in a real estate related industry or hardship of an existing brokerage (i.e. inability to retain services of licensed broker) is considered in order to “waive” the two (2) year requirement.
 - It is possible that there would be an increase in the number of application and license fees for brokers if the provision allowing a hearing before the Commission is exercised and applications approved by the Commission. However, there is no way to anticipate how many individuals would exercise this option.
- Prohibits individuals who have been issued a broker’s license from acting as a designated broker for another licensee until they have taken additional courses in post-licensure education in prescribed subjects.
 - No fiscal impact is present as the restriction is placed upon the individual.
- Requires applicants for broker’s or salespersons licenses to complete six (6) class hours of study related to professional practice and standards.
- Requires individuals who are issued a brokers or salespersons license to complete 12 class hours of study within 180 days, related to knowledge and skills required for real estate practice and provides the Commission with the authority to place a license in an inactive status if the class hours are not completed. A fee equivalent to that authorized under RRS 81-885.20 (currently $25) to transfer to an active status is also authorized if placed in an inactive status due to the class hours not being completed.
- In relation to the new educational requirements noted in the two (2) bullets directly above, the requirement that the Commission monitor private proprietary schools and approve instructors at such schools is extended to schools offering such education.

The additional changes listed above that are related specifically to educational requirements listed have no discernable impact on Commission expenditures as existing statutory language requires the same oversight of current institutions, educational materials, and instructors providing the current required instruction. Additionally, the potential transfer fee could result in an increase in revenue, however it is unknown how many individuals would actually be subject to the fee allowing an estimate to be provided.

The Commission has indicated there may be expenditures related to course development, but those costs are able to be completed with current resources (see attached). There is no basis to disagree with their assessment.

Explanation of Estimate: LB384 as amended by AM272 changes provisions regarding pre-license and post license education for real estate licensees. The bill also changes education and experience requirements for real estate brokers. The Commission may incur some one-time costs for course development, but these costs should be minimal and able to be absorbed within existing resources.
