This bill would provide for intervention by a biological parent in certain juvenile proceedings.

AM422 states that the costs of genetic testing shall be paid by the intervenor, the county, or the state at the discretion of the juvenile court. This provision has the potential for additional costs being paid by a county or the state. Because it is at the discretion of the juvenile court, any impact is indeterminable at this time.

The Supreme Court estimates a minimal fiscal impact to provide education related to the changes in AM422.

The Supreme Court notes that if the cost of the genetic test is to be paid by the "state", it assumes that it would not be the Court that paid, but an entity such as the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS).

HHS estimates no fiscal impact from this bill.

Explanation of Estimate:

It is estimated that LB93, as amended by AM422, would result in a minimal fiscal impact to provide education related to statute changes. It is assumed that if a juvenile court determined that the cost of genetic testing should be paid by the "state" that it would not be an expense of the Judicial Branch, but an entity such as the Department of Health and Human Services.
